A comprehensive programme to support families with a young disabled child, so that staff and families think about a person centred approach right from the start.

FEATURES

- This new programme gives Local Authorities, Sure Start programmes and Children's Trusts the opportunity to explore and understand how to support families in leading their own lives and directing their own support, so that their disabled son or daughter grows up with this expectation.
- This flexible ten day package can be delivered over six months to one year.
- It represents excellent value and is only delivered by consultants who have been directly involved in the first pilots of Individualised Budgets for young people.

WHY PARADIGM?

- This programme is all about supporting families and disabled children and young people to live their own life.
- It explores the options available that give more control to families.
- It highlights examples of best practice nationally that respect choice.
- As the programme develops it will seek to build a network of contacts, good practice, explore non-traditional forms of support to families, as well as focus on what works.

WHAT YOU WILL ACHIEVE

- This programme is directed at those who are ready to embrace the changes and challenges ahead.
- Participants will be skilled staff who feel geared up to engage with families in a very different way.
- This programme provides practical learning opportunities, interactive workshops and tools to use with families.
- It offers the opportunity to review existing structures and policies.
